Shrewsbury House was built in 1923 as a private dwelling but calls on the style and grandeur of much earlier periods with elaborate plastered ceilings and wood panelled rooms in an elegant Jacobean, early eighteenth century and Adam style.

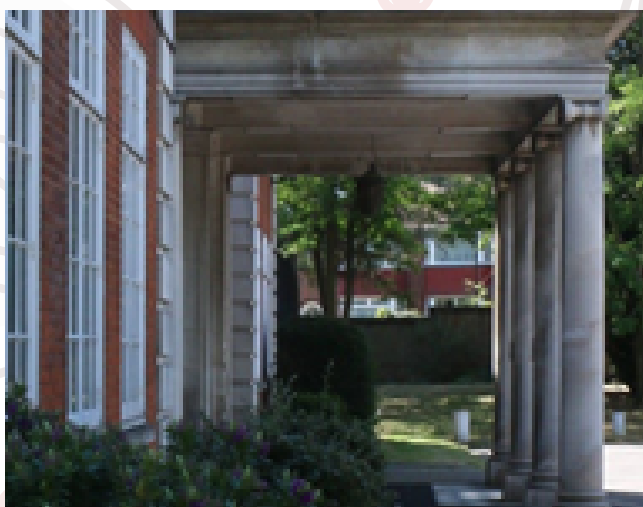

We have three rooms licensed for weddings and civil ceremonies to accommodate parties of various size.

The Library is the largest of the three room. It has oak panelled walls and an ornate plastered ceiling. Large French windows open directly on to the garden.

The Drawing Room is decorated in cool neutral tones with plaster wall panels and ceiling mouldings. A French window opens onto a columned and tiled loggia that makes a perfect frame for photographs. Beyond the loggia is a large lawned area and garden.

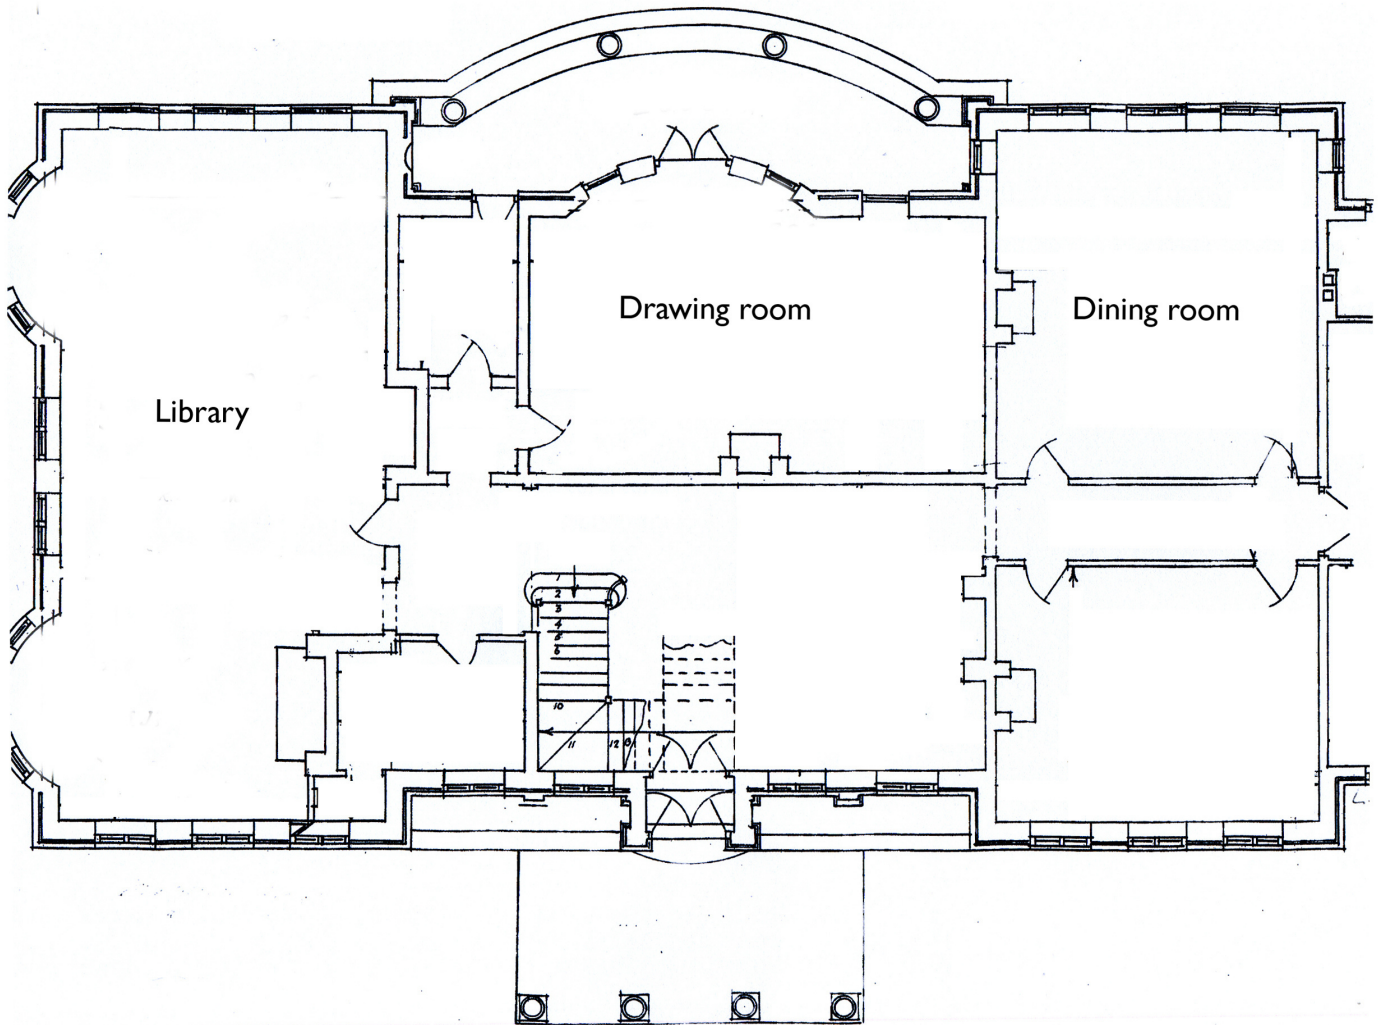

The Dining Room is perfect for smaller ceremonies. With wood panelled walls and warm red window drapes it is an intimate and comfortable space.

All three rooms can be booked separately or in combination.
